

Pertussis. Contagious. Preventable.

Pregnant persons should be immunized against pertussis (whooping cough) in every pregnancy.

Immunization against pertussis during pregnancy is safe and helps reduce the risk of the disease in infants.

Talk to your doctor, nurse, pharmacist, or local public health office about getting immunized.